County's Roads and Highways Crumbling after Bad Winter

Not in many years have federal, state, county and township roads been in as deplorable condition generally as at the present time. Condition of the roads has been growing worse for weeks, but the general thaw of the past few days has seen the "bottom drop out" of many of them in many places.

Not only have some of the township and county roads literally "gone to pieces" in places, but state and federal routes also have been hard hit.

One of the most seriously damaged roads in the county is the state route 734 between Jeffersonville and Jamestown. Its condition became so bad Monday that buses ceased to travel over it, and heavy trucks found the going extremely difficult.

The State Highway Department rushed material to the road. Crews are attempting to bridge over the bad spots until they can be given more permanent attention.

Route 734 is one of several main routes in the county which are breaking up in many places.

Supt. Hillery said Wednesday that within the next day or two load limit signs will be sent here by the State Highway Department and posted on roads which are being cut to pieces.

A great deal of patching has

But Hasn't Come to This Yet

HERE IS A SCENE on the Columbus Highway, at the "Judy Bend," two miles northeast of Washington C. H., when the road was impassable to automobiles 43 years ago.

The late W. H. Hetteshelmer, one of the first automobile owners in Fayette County, is pictured with a piece of fence rail, probing the two-foot deep water filled rut in the road.

The picture is apropos of the present condition of some of the roads in the county, which are in spots nearly impassable to motor vehicles.

The above picture was taken in April, 1908, and it launched the first big road improvement program for automobiles in Fayette County.

B&O Tax Case Won by County

Classification Of Property Crux

The B&O Railroad has lost its effort to have its real property in Fayette County taxed at only $69,800 in connection with the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District.

Instead it must pay on $759,949 worth of real estate, out of a total valuation of $1,401,250 worth of property in the county, which included rolling stock.

The B&O lost its claims when the state board of tax appeals Wednesday ruled that a Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy district tax in Fayette County applied to $759,949 worth of B&O property.

The conservancy district and the county auditor had contended the .3 of a mill levy applied to all B&O property within Fayette County, a total of $1,401,250.

The railroad contended the levy applied only to $69,800 in operational real estate.

Supreme Court Reversal

The board of tax appeals originally held with the railroad, but the Ohio supreme court reversed the state board, and ordered the board to make a survey of the property to be assessed.

The figure announced by the tax appeals board today includes real estate, ties, rails, telephone and telegraph wires, and attachments, and tracks, accessories, control equipment, road beds, ballast, trestles, culverts, bridges, signal apparatus, streets and road crossing improvements, and cattle guards.

The B&O had held, according to County Auditor Ulric T. Acton, that only the real estate used in operation of the road, was taxable as such, and that the above listed property was personal property and not subject to the tax.

After the board of tax appeals held in favor of the railroad company, a refund of $290 was made to the B&O Railroad, Acton said, but the conservancy district officials has never refunded the amount to the county.

It is pointed out that now a substantial part of the refund must be paid back by the B&O by reason of the new holding.

Meanderings

By Wash Fayette

Winter is not over yet. The Paint Valley Prophet says so.

"You have not heard the doves cooing in the trees, and until you do, you can look for more winter," is the way the prophet sizes up the situation.

It is the first prediction the Paint Valley Prophet has made since the turtles and high-built hornets nests fooled him last fall into indicating that a mild winter was ahead.

Now then, listen for the doves to tell you when winter is over!

Could Washington C. H. and Fayette County brag about some accomplishments since Ohio gained statehood 150 years ago, March 1937?

There's one local man who believes that this city and county can. And he suggests that a committee be named to discuss our accomplishments so that they might be noted in 1953, when Ohio will observe its 150 birthday.

Ohio Sesquicentennial the big celebration will note the occasion. Will this city and county be a part of it? That's the question the man would like to see answered. Plans are being made to include many cities and towns in the celebration.

Blood Program In County Has Been Stepped Up

Quota Increased To Meet Needs of War in Far East

The Red Cross blood program in Fayette County went on a wartime footing Tuesday.

From now on piecemeal efforts to obtain the county's blood goal will make way for firm, positive plans geared to fit the needs of fighting men in Korea, it was indicated.

Sixteen representative leaders from the county were told that the time for "dilly dallying" was over; that they must produce 125 pints of blood each time the Red Cross blood unit visits this city or fail in their job to our fighting men.

These terse instructions came from Mrs. Marie C. Ryan of Columbus, national blood program field representative for the Red Cross.

She said whole blood collected here must be sped immediately to Columbus, processed and put aboard planes for San Francisco for delivery to Japan, in many cases within 16 hours after leaving Columbus.

In Japan the whole blood is flown to the fighting fronts in Korea, and in a few instances dropped by parachute to our forces there. Upmost speed must be employed, she said, since the whole blood is only good for a limited period of time. She said the Red Cross was the official and only blood collecting agency for the U. S. armed forces.

Unit To Be Here March 1

With only seven days remaining before the next visit of the blood unit to this county -- March 1--the 16 persons went to work immediately setting up an organization which they felt would insure getting the goal.

Tom Mark was picked to head the blood program. W. W. Montgomery agreed to have charge of getting 60 donors, from the various rural townships in the county for each visit of the blood unit.

Mark will appoint a city chairman, it was indicated, who will insure that 100 residents of the city sign up to donate blood each time the blood unit comes to Washington C. H. (Please turn to Page Thirteen)

Bitter Winter Is Costly to Ohio Highways

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21—(AP)—Bitter winter weather and heavy snow cost the state $16,000,000 in lost highway construction, the assistant director of the state highway department said today.

Here's how L. F. Schaeublin figures: Snow removal cost the state $3,838,432 since Nov. 25, 1950.

Damage to Ohio's 19,000 miles of state highways is estimated at $4,000,000.

This is about $8,000,000 spent over and above the normal cost of maintenance. With the federal roads bureau putting up 50 percent for highway construction projects, that represents $16,000,000 in construction that could have been achieved with the money spent to repair winter damage and to move snow off highways.

"This has been the most harmful winter to the highways I have seen in my 25 years with the state highway department," Schaeublin said.

"I estimate that the winter weather will cost the state of Ohio around four million dollars over and above the regular cost of maintenance."

A rain and wind storm also struck the St. Louis area last night. Trees were uprooted, plate glass windows broken and some 10,000 homes darkened because of power failures.

No severe cold was reported in the country today.

The recent mild weather and rains filled many rivers to overflowing in some areas. Floodwaters poured over farm lands in many parts of Illinois, but no serious flooding was expected.

Several families in Portland, Mich., left their homes when an ice jam forced the Grand river over its banks. Several homes and buildings in the south central Michigan community of 2,500 were damaged.

Russia Is Invited to Meeting To Work Out Plans for Peace

Troops-to-Europe And Guard Issues Still in Spotlight

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—(AP)—

The United States is making detailed plans for a Big Four deputies meeting in Paris next month even though officials believe Russia may now veto the whole project.

The U. S., Britain and France are insisting that as a condition to the Paris session, Moscow must be willing to talk about its own military power as a major cause of tensions in the world.

In a note delivered to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky by the three western ambassadors in Moscow Monday night and made public last night, the Western governments sought to ease the way for Moscow's acceptance of this subject but authorities agreed the sugarcoating was thin.

What the note said in substance is this: Russia is maintaining "huge armaments," as are the satellite countries and Soviet Eastern Germany. The existence of these forces and Russia's aggressive policies are responsible for world tension and for the need of the Western nations to build up their own forces.

Pertinent Questions

However, the notes continued, in previous exchanges Russia admitted a number of questions other than Germany might be talked about. The Kremlin specifically drew attention to the question of armaments.

The notes said the West therefore "assumes that the Soviet government does not object to the representatives of the four governments" preparing for a future Big Four foreign ministers meeting a program "which will cover the causes of tension in Europe, including the existing level of armaments; problems affecting Germany; the Austrian peace treaty."

If Russia agrees with the basis thus outlined for a meeting in Paris, the U. S. suggested the meeting be held on March 5.

Troops-to-Europe

Meanwhile, Senator Douglas (D-Ill.) quit the fight today for a limitation on the number of American troops that can be assigned to the European defense force.

Basketball Bribe Money Is Found

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—(AP)—More than $20,000 recovered by police from five of the eight local basketball players involved in the gambling scandal still belongs to the youths.

The players led police to the various caches in safe deposit boxes, coat linings and buried shoe boxes. Officials say all but a few dollars of the money are bribes received from gamblers. It was explained the money only was impounded and would be returned to the players. However, fines will be deducted if the youths are convicted, an official said.

Gasoline Rationing Unlikely Unless Country Gets into War

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—(AP)—

There'll be enough gasoline for all the Sunday drivers and all the military forces this summer, without rationing and with about the same octane rating they now buy --barring an all-out war.

Oil economists say today they feel sure of this, but they add: the defense program -- still in its warming-up stage -- may put pressure on oil at the industrial-power and home-heating levels.

Red Defenses Hold, However, At Han River

No Replacements For Yanks in Korea Are Likely Soon

By OLEN CLEMENTS

TOKYO, Feb. 21—(AP)—Allied forces flattened out the Reds' Wonju bulge in central Korea today but in the west the Communists blocked two new Allied attempts to cross the Han River.

A driving, relentless rain turned the whole Korean battlefield into a mud puddle.

Field dispatches said the rain soaked GIs, bogged down tanks, filled foxholes and deepened the miseries of the front.

A few troops took advantage of the rain for their first showers in a month; those who could took turns ducking into Korean shelters.

But for most, the rain meant a constant soaking.

Red mortar fire-- "the heaviest and most accurate I've ever seen," said one commander--drove back an armored patrol to the south bank of the Han seven miles east of Seoul.

Five miles downstream from Seoul, heavy resistance checked a South Korean patrol trying to cross the Han.

American and British troops mopped up Red stragglers south of the river.

Advance in Center

On the east central front, United Nations troops thrust forward against light opposition.

On the west central front, advance patrols were moving ahead north of Chipyong where a French-American force last week smashed a massive Red counter-attack.

Scattered in an arc north of the Wonju salient were 40,000 Communist troops who had pulled back from the attack to lick their wounds.

U. S. Fifth Air Force planes roared out again Wednesday in support of ground troops.

Big naval guns rocked both coasts of Korea.

The battleship Missouri bombarded the Tanchon area in far northeastern Korea all day Tuesday. Other Allied naval forces bucked strong shore batteries around Wonsan on the sea of Japan coast for the seventh straight day.

Sale of New Cars In Used Car Market Is Banned by OPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—(AP)—The government today banned the sale of new cars at inflated prices in the used car market and set dollars-and-cents ceiling prices on all used cars.

The action was announced by the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS). The new regulations are effective March 2.

Bruce Morris, chief of the agency's automobile pricing division, said the move was designed to halt a "widespread" flow of new cars into the used car market and to prevent used cars from selling above new car prices.

Both practices occurred during the last war.

The price schedule of used cars, under the ceiling, will be based on prices listed in guide books employed by used car dealers as a yardstick of values.

Morris explained that since automobile prices at the manufacturer's level were frozen on Dec. 18, some dealers across the nation have been selling new cars in the used car market at prices above the retail list price.

Willis B. Jones 67, a native of Washington C. H., who spent his early years here, died in St. Petersburg, Fla. a few days ago. He was known here as W. Bradford Jones.

After leaving this city he went to Milwaukee, and he moved to St. Petersburg five years ago.

He was secretary-treasurer of the Bahama Shores Beach Home Owners Association.

For 30 years he was sales director of the Koerling Heavy Machinery Company in Milwaukee.

Peace Conference

reporter he now doubts it would be practical.

"In the light of what Secretary of Defense Marshall and the chiefs of staff have said, I think any limitation would do more harm than good," Douglas said.

Douglas' change of mind left Senator Taft (R-Ohio) almost alone among Senate leaders in plugging for a limitation. Senator Wherry (R-Neb) has said he is against sending even one division.

The plan of the army to release National Guardsmen when their federal service time runs out next year appeared today to leave unchanged the probability that at least two of the presently federalized six guard divisions will be sent overseas in the next few months.

The army also disclosed in a news conference yesterday by its training chief, Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, that it will call no more guard divisions "unless the world situation changes."

This latter statement startled some Congress members and brought predictions that the lawmakers would make inquiries. Senator Bridges (R-NH) of the Senate armed services committee called it a "change in policy" and said he thought the committee would want to look into it.

And Senator Jenner (R-Ind) said he was confused. If the guard isn't to be used, he asked, why "are they getting set to buy equipment for 10,000,000 men?"

Under existing law, the army has no choice about releasing guardsmen when the tenure of the federal service expires. The draft act, under which the government has called in the guard units, provides the units may be kept in federal service for 21 months. Legislation now pending in Congress would extend that time to 24 or 27 months, the time varying with different bills which have been offered.

Ruehrer said American labor is prepared to accept wage stabilization but the program must provide for wage raises to meet higher living costs and must not tamper with existing contracts.

DiSalle asked, "What sacrifice is being made there?"

"A great deal of sacrifice," Ruehrer replied. "The escalator clause in an auto worker's contract merely protects him from higher living costs -- 90 days late." He said also that under the escalator contracts, wages go down if the cost of living goes down.

was the weakest cereal, as it had been in previous days this week. Oats were first to show a steady trend.

The decline which ran through the early part of today's session had brought a substantial price mark-down from last week's highs. That factor alone, apparently, accounted for the market's stiffening attitude.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—(P)—Things are getting so tough Joe Stalin is talking to himself and guys are asking me how they can slip a fast one over on the old lady.

Maybe it just goes to show that while presidents and senators and general and generalissimos are having worries, a lot of other people must be having worries, too.

It was only last week that Joe Stalin, who seems to have something bothering him, had an interview with himself. Of course, the stories out of Moscow said Stalin gave an interview to a reporter from Pravda, the Russian newspaper.

But since Joe controls the paper and everybody working for it and everything that goes into it, it all wound up with Joe talking, to Joe and Joe asking Joe questions which Joe answered.

And this week I got a letter from a guy who's in a kind of pickle at home and he must want someone to talk to, besides his wife, because he wrote me a fairly long letter.

Judging from what he said, I guess his old lady would part his hair with a coffee pot if she recognized him and her in the letter and found out what he was up to.

So just in case, I'll change the letter a bit but in only one place. That's where he says how long he's been married. I'll change the number of years. But all the rest of the letter which follows is just as he wrote it.

"Dear Mr. Marlow:
"My problem is one that Uncle Sam has probably never considered. I have been married to my wife 17 years and also have a widowed mother who requires my aid.

"Helping my mother has been a sore spot with my wife and more so since my assistance does not equal one-half of my mother's income. So I cannot take credit for her as a dependent on my income tax return.

"A few months ago I received additional compensation which I have concealed from my wife in order to assist my mother without having to go through hell at home.

"However, I am not going to withhold reporting the added income to Uncle Sam. In fact, I can't, because my employer turns in his report of said monies. Here comes the question:

"Suppose I make out a return showing my old (previous) income and have my wife sign it. Then I make a correct return and copy her signature on it -- and destroy the false return.

"Technically, that would be forging my wife's name but I wouldn't be cheating Uncle Sam and I'd be free from all worry.

"If I ever got caught by the Department of Internal Revenue for forging my wife's name, would they prosecute me under the circumstances?

"I'll wager millions of men would appreciate some comment by you on this matter since I'm sure not all wives are aware of their husbands' exact income, and a lot of men are wondering how to get by at this time of year.

"Very Truly Yours,
"XXXXXXXXXX"

Well, now, Jack, I'll tell you how it is . . . you'll have to excuse me. The phone's ringing.

But I just wanted to tell you I showed your letter to some of the boys in the office. They're almost all married.

I've worked with them for years. But until I heard their comment on your letter I never realized what a bunch of experts on matrimony they are.

Right off the bat when they read your letter, quick as a wink, they said: "Uncle Sam ain't his only problem."

March 1 Changed As Moving Date

March first formerly was the accepted moving time among farm tenants.

By making the change on the same day a tenant house was hardly cold from the fires of one family until another family took charge.

During recent years there has been a growing tendency among farm tenants to change locations at some other time near March 1 instead of on that date.

As a result, many tenants have been moving during the past two or three weeks, even in the face of bad weather.

There are still many to move, but they are now waiting arrival of more appropriate weather to make the shift in homes.

been necessary on U. S. 22 between here and Sabina. County Roads Bad

The Greenfield Road has developed many breaks. With bad sections cropping up in some of the other main highways, the Highway Department has had crews of men applying stone and doing everything possible to meet the emergency.

It is with difficulty that automobiles negotiate some of the county roads. Their condition is rapidly becoming worse as the ground thaws out. County Engineer Charles Wagner said that county roads were posted in December, and that much of the present damage has been caused by overloading and disregarding the signs.

David Hillery, county superintendent of state and federal highways, said that it was apparent that overloaded trucks are causing much of the damage.

Officials admit that the road situation is serious and probably will get worse before the weather returns to normal and repairs can be made.

Washington C. H., Ohio

er returns to normal and repairs can be made.

In many instances whole sections of roads which have been cut to pieces must be rebuilt.

Streets in Washington C. H. and villages in the county also are hard hit, and extensive rebuilding and repairs will be necessary. Apparently the foundation of some of the streets and highways became soft as result of long soaking and the thawing which came after the deep freezing.

Tens of thousands of dollars will be necessary to bring something like order out of the chaotic condition of some of the highways and streets, it is pointed out.

Some Things Should Be Denied or Explained

Most people in this country would have more confidence in the conduct of the federal administration with reference to its financial transactions if they were sure they were getting authentic and official information concerning some of its spending.

Attention has been given recently to a report concerning the purchase of 1,350,000

George Washington

George Washington is first in the galaxy of American heroes not so much because of what he said as because of his sterling character, which towers above other national leaders in the long history of this nation.

Washington's dedication to the public service should be an inspiration to all Americans and a challenge to those they have elevated to positions of leadership.

Washington could easily have been a Tory, as so many of his contemporaries were, but he saw clearly that there was no future for Americans under British rule. He put everything he had into the revolution. In that struggle he was a grim, do-or-die figure who will always live in the imagination of the American people.

Washington was an aristocrat who might have been callous to the welfare of those in lower social strata. But he attacked class consciousness with all his energy, warned against it unrelentingly and declared time and again that a republic could not survive along class lines.

Washington was a gentleman, conscious of the dignity of his position, speaking soberly on weighty matters, indulging neither in self-deception nor attempts to deceive the public. He remains the giant figure which integrity alone can create, an inspiration to his countrymen more than 150 years after his death.

dressers for the 27,500 women now in the armed services. It is hard to believe that the government would purchase 45 dresses for every woman in uniform. But things as bad as that or worse, are reported to have happened in the last war.

Some years ago it was declared and never denied, that the war department had purchased 1,000,000 saddles to be used by the cavalry, which then had a total complement of 27,000 horses. In recent years it has been contended there are three typewriters in government bureaus for every clerk and stenographer.

Similar unnecessary purchases are frequently commented upon. Nor has it ever been explained why "red tape" costs the government $17 to put through a purchase of $1.75 or less.

At any rate, the women in service will never be able to complain they haven't a thing to wear. The government seems to have taken care of that.

However, the American people have a right to raise complaints about taxes if their money is being spilled about like some of these reports indicate.

Surely someone is in a position of authority who can correct such statements if they are not true, or who can explain them if they are true and there is a reason for such action.

"Handouts" Cause Harm

In order to be strong it is desirable and necessary to think straight. The orgies of governmental "handouts" not only causes deterioration of government strength but also tends to impair the character, the initiative, the industry and the moral fiber of the people, young and old.

A First Look at the Homeland

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — (P) — Coming back from Korea to America today is a disturbing adventure.

It is a voyage from an uneasy war to an uneasy peace. The soldier there is less tense in many ways than is the civilian here.

That is a startling first impression to one returning to the United States after more than half a year in the far east war theater. When you are in a battle area, home becomes a shining paradise you long to get back to. You forget it has fly specks.

But I suppose the extraordinary tension here, so surprising at first glance, is only normal, considering the troubled times.

Nothing causes tension more than uncertainty. The soldier in Korea is more relaxed in some ways than the civilian here because he basically knows better what to expect. On the next hill, or the hill beyond the next hill, enemy Chinese or North Koreans Reds, and he must fight them. But the American civilian is beset by nameless fears about his clouded future. He doesn't know for sure what is coming across his horizon next, and the shadows he sees are black indeed.

The chief worry everybody seems to have is "I don't know what to plan for." That goes for the teen-age boy, the old couple caught between a fixed pension and rising prices, and businessmen who don't know whether they will be able to go on making buttons or have to start turning out grenade pins.

Everywhere there are signs of a tremendous prosperity, enriching more people than any other period of good times in history. More people have more money to spend than ever before. And as yet there is more to buy with it than ever before.

But it is a tasteless prosperity, a banquet of plenty under that new sword of Damocles—the atom bomb. There is a widening fear that the bomb will fall and the roof cave in, destroying the banquet and the diners.

The greatest shock of my return home came when I entered the elevator to ride up to my apartment. The first thing I saw was a poster telling what to do in the event of an air raid. That jolted me. A year ago it would have been thought silly to put up air raid warnings in Manhattan.

Another thing that struck me was this: a profound disillusionment with the United Nations and a tendency to make it the scapegoat of our own uncertainty. Few soldiers in Korea spend much time debating the shortcomings of the United Nations. But I don't recall any blaming it for the present plight of the world.

As more and more parents invest their sons beneath their flag, the homesickness for real peace grows. But of the major countries today America seems most determined to stand up for what it believes in -- and most willing to undertake the burdens of war, if it comes.

There has been a deep hardening of purpose here in the last six months. It stands out amid all the half-serious joking about food shortages and black markets.

"I've got plenty to eat put away in my freezer," said one father. "But I've got two boys of draft age, and I can't hide them in my cellar. And if the country needs them I wouldn't want to stand in the way."

"They are already beginning to put things under the counter in some stores," said the taxi driver who drove me home. "But I'll give people credit for one thing. There hasn't been a buying panic this time, and I don't think there will be. People are acting more like people ought to."

I thought that was the best tribute that could be paid to our country, as it readies its vast power against whatever trails the next few months or years may bring. And it's a wonderful feeling to come back to a land that is still free--and the home of the brave.

Vicious Bigotry To Bring Chaos

By George Sokolsky

The lie has become an ugly nuisance in our public life. Men say things which are unrelated to any facts at all, but which by constant repetition come to be accepted as truth. This is often called "the big lie," which Hitler is accused of inventing but which even those who denounce Hitler pursue.

Just now I am receiving large quantities of mail on two lies:

1. One group identifies Zionism with Communism.

2. The other denounces members of the Roman Catholic Church as agents of a foreign government.

Both are lies and require exposure as such and it is sound to lump them together in this discussion, because both these charges stem from vicious bigotry designed to bring chaos to this country.

Zionism goes back some 4,000 years when Abraham left Ur of Chaldees and wandered toward the Land of Canaan. Thus, Palestine has been imbedded in Jewish tradition throughout these 40 centuries of their life. It was in Palestine that the Jews developed as a people, produced their monotheistic religion, wrote their Bible, sang their psalms, and established a nation.

This has never been forgotten among Jews and even after the temple was destroyed, they returned to its remaining wall to weep. Nowhere is this spirit more tragically described than in the Book of Lamentations, attributed to the prophet Jeremiah:

"How hath the Lord covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud in his anger, and cast down from heaven unto the earth the beauty of Israel, and remembered not his footstool in the day of his anger!"

The greatest Jewish poet of post-Biblical times, Jehuda Halevi, who was born in 1086, expressed the fervor of this concept in the poem, "My Heart Is In the East":

"My heart is in the east, and I in the uttermost west--how can I find savour in food? How shall it be sweet to me? How shall I render my vows and my bonds, while yet Zion lieth beneath the fetter of Edom, and I in Arab chains? A light thing would it seem to me to leave all the good things of Spain--seeing how precious in mine eyes it is to behold the dust of the desolate sanctuary."

Zion is so ingrained in the Jewish soul that every generation for all these thousands of years has expressed a hope for its restoration to Israel. During the Dreyfus trials in France (1894-1906), Theodor Herzl, a journalist of Vienna, decided to devote his life to this task. He developed the modern Zionist movement which finally achieved the establishment of the state of Israel.

Obviously, none of this has anything to do with Marxism, Communism, or any other emanation of the materialistic concepts of life of Hegel, Marx, Engels, Darwin, Lenin or Stalin. To say otherwise is to deny history -- the 4,000-year-old history of the Jewish people.

Similarly to denounce the 23,000,000 Americans who worship God according to Roman Catholic rite and ritual and philosophy is to reduce bigotry to absurdity. These citizens have been in this country since colonial times, as the Jews have been. Their lives have been spilled on all our battlefields. They have contributed richly to the building of our country.

It is true that Roman Catholics accept the authority of the Pope, who is the bishop of Rome, in matters of faith and morals and in church discipline. Yet, as Al Smith was a Democrat, so are General "Wild Bill" Donovan and General Pat Hurley Republicans. There has been no Catholic party in this country.

Are we to be a nation of Americans or a congeries of minorities who view each other with suspicion and hatred and fear? Those who advocate such division can only serve the brutal imperialists who seek to overthrow this bastion of human liberty where men may worship God without hindrance as family tradition and conscience dictate.

The best statement of the philosophy of Catholicism in relation to American ideals and civilization that I have seen in recent years is "the key to peace" by Dean Clarence Manion of Notre Dame. Norman Vincent Peale, of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York, himself a Methodist, says of this book:

"Dean Manion's book gives the one certain method for making freedom strong in our time. It is one of the greatest books of all my reading experience and I commend it to every patriotic man and woman."

And to that, I can only say, amen!

Sokolsky

Diet and Health

High Blood Pressure Diet Can Be Help

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Just how much can diet do in the treatment of high blood pressure? This is a question I am often asked by laymen and it is one which, to a certain extent, still puzzles doctors. Certainly the idea that diet can help to lower the blood pressure has been persistent, perhaps because it has so often been demonstrated that pressure falls in the overweight person if he goes on a diet which produces significant weight loss.

Though salt-free diets have received great attention during recent years, the idea is anything but new. Almost a half century ago, we had reports of cases of high blood pressure that were helped by using diets low in salt. The treatment was tried for a time and then dropped, only to be resumed again during the past few years.

High Blood Pressure

Nor has this been the only diet believed useful in high blood pressure. There is, for example, the low-calorie diet which, as I said before, is often valuable in reducing the blood pressure if the patient is overweight.

Diets low in protein food, such as meat, milk, and eggs, have been used, but there is no scientific basis for employing a diet of this type. In fact, a reduction of the proteins will only interfere with the patient's general good health, without at all helping to lower the blood pressure.

Another special diet is known as the rice diet. It would appear that the value obtained from this diet lies in the fact that it is low not only in salt, but in calories.

Diets low in cholesterol have been used. Cholesterol in an alcohol-like substance that is found in all of the body tissues. There is no evidence that such a diet will reduce the blood pressure, although in patients who have hardening of the arteries it may be of some help in checking the progress of the latter condition, thus making the high pressure less hazardous.

Large Number

In a study of a large number of patients with high blood pressure, it was found that less than one in five of the patients whose diets were limited in salt was improved. The one thing that will reduce the blood pressure in the case of overweight persons is loss of weight.

In thousands upon thousands of cases, persons who have high blood pressure have no symptoms for long periods of years.

There is still much to be learned about this condition, not only as to what produces it, but also as to what measures should be used to decrease the pressure, and whether or not such decreases may be really advisable.

Last Civil War Vet In Ohio Dies at 104

WAUSEON, Feb. 21 (AP) — Daniel Clingaman, 104, Ohio's last surviving GAR veteran of the war between the states, died here. He had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage three weeks ago.

Thus ended an era in Ohio history, for Clingaman was the last of some 310,000 "boys in blue" who went from Ohio to fight in the Civil War.

Born Sept. 25, 1846, near Melmore in Seneca County, he and his parents moved six years later in a covered wagon to a homestead in Fulton County. In 1865, when he was 18 years old, he enlisted in the last call for volunteers in the Union army.

Clingaman and a brother served as buck privates in company D, 105th volunteer infantry. He marched with General Philip Sheridan's army through the Shenandoah Valley to Richmond, Va., when the war ended.

After he was mustered out, Clingaman opened a blacksmith shop at Tedrow, near Wauseon. Fifteen years later he bought a farm near here and had lived there ever since.

Civilian Defense Plan Here Outlined

Progress Made, County Director Tells Rotarians

The Rotary luncheon program at the Country Club Tuesday noon was devoted to civilian defense.

Capt. C. V. Sexton, director of civilian defense for Fayette County, was the club's guest speaker.

Introduced by Victor Smith of the Rotary February program committee, Capt. Sexton briefly outlined the imperative need for action and necessity for all citizens to assume a share in the responsibility in setting up an adequate civilian defense in the city and county.

He pointed out many phases of such defense necessary as recommended by the federal and state governments and told of the steps Fayette County had taken toward following such recommendations.

"We have the personnel of the county organization set up," Sexton declared, "but have not as yet completed a training program which is necessary to properly activate the organization."

He did show that some of this work is being accomplished, such as in "first aid." James Yates is the official Red Cross director and instructor in this service. He has been conducting classes with a view eventually seeking to have one such trained person in every home, Sexton stated.

Program Personnel

Touching briefly upon the principal division heads named in Washington C. H. to take charge of certain phases of the preparations, Sexton stated that he was acting directly under orders of the county commissioners and of City Manager Winston Hill. He also said that Hill was named as director of personnel.

Assistant directors are; information and communication, Paul Dougherty; assistant, George Hall; training personnel, Don Gibson and Mae Dews; transportation and supply and housing evacuation, Ansel Kirkpatrick, assistants, Kenneth Kelley, W. W. Humphries and Ambrose Elliott and health, George Pensyl, assisted by Dr. Buyers E. Shaw, Miss Gretchen Darlington and County Sanitarian Donald Lange.

Organization in Washington C. H. ward captains—first ward, M. L. Lyons; second ward, George S. Inskeep; third ward Chester Trout and fourth ward, William C. Allen.

The speaker explained how the city's wards were broken down into precinct captains and block wardens.

An auxiliary police force is being organized under Chief of Police Vaiden Long in Washington C. H., he explained, and said some of the men will be deputized officially to accept additional responsibilities. The same situation will prevail with reference to the county at large, he stated, with Sheriff Orland Hays in charge. Sheriff Hays is now setting up a force of 20 special deputies to assist him.

Air Raid Warning

Sexton also outlined organization efforts being pushed with reference to an observation corps to detect and report upon airplanes, a group of auxiliary firemen are being trained by Fire Chief George Hall and of organization of certain duties to which Boy Scouts will be assigned.

The auxiliary highway patrol organized in this county to give aid to state highway patrolmen and an extensive use of the county engineer and the facilities of his office and organization came in for explanation by Sexton.

Rotarians were very interested in Sexton's talk and several indicated to him afterwards their willingness to respond to any call of duty assigned them.

Robert Lewis, outgoing student guest made a brief "thank you" speech and George Steen introduced the new student guest Bucky Smith.

Birthday greetings were sung for William Cliff, Frank Jackson and Allan White.

Treasurer Marilyn Riley made a report showing a balance in the Rotary Club treasury of $1,568.25.

Teak Forest Project Is Planned in Burma

RANGOON —(P)—The famous Burmese teak may soon find itself in competition with other Burmese hardwoods if plans by Austrian-born Dr. F. A. V. Monroy materialize.

Monroy, a forestry expert with the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, has come here to help the Burmese establish an integrated forest industry. He says the Burmese have neglected several species because of the bias in favor of teak. Some of these are well suited for conversion into fibrewood, plywood and pulpwood. Other species can be used for carpentry and house-building.

He proposes picking favorable to work on what is available. The locations in the country and going projects will be financed by the Burmese government and will include the making of plastics, an industry entirely new to this country, Monroy said.

Changes in Cars To Be Few Now

Complications Loom In New Controls

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 —(P)—Another batch of controls is about ready to issue forth from Washington. And here are a few of the things they may have in store for you:

Still less steel, copper and aluminum for cars, refrigerators, stoves. And maybe no car model changes after this fall.

Still tighter instalment credit terms -- meaning you'll have to have more cash to buy the fewer autos and appliances that will be made.

Still higher prices in the stores on many non-food items -- to allow merchants their traditional mark-up.

Still higher prices on many food items -- not because of controls, but because of no controls at the farm level until parity is reached.

And the government moves a step nearer to the day when you will be told where you work and what you work at -- a top emergency manpower director has been named to rank right along side price czar Johnston.

A host of other orders, to control prices and production, are being prepared. In one move, made yesterday, the national production authority ordered paper manufacturers to reserve from five to 10 percent of monthly output to fill orders of 12 government agencies.

The forest, primeval or otherwise, is coming under control. Ceiling prices for posts, saw logs, pulpwood and other products will be set on a regional basis, at the highest level between Dec. 19 and Jan. 25.

Alloy steel producers expect to be told soon that more of their output is earmarked for defense production, and less for civilian uses.

Notice to Car Makers

Auto makers are on notice their use of steel, copper and aluminum is to be cut back after April 1--up to 40 percent in some cases. A separate cutback on metals for the home appliance industry is planned. Auto union leaders say that could throw a half million men out of work.

Some car makers are also expecting NPA orders forbidding them to concentrate what metals they have on producing the more expensive models. Output of cheaper cars must not suffer, according to plans being considered in Washington now.

The same rule may be applied to clothing makers and shoe makers -- don't cut your cheaper lines just so you can sell more higher priced goods.

Metals, plastics and rubber controls are already a big headache to makers of sporting goods and toys. NPA lists these industries as not too essential, and manufacturers are having a hard time finding their traditional materials or substitutes for them. Some of them are appealing to Washington for relief, stressing the morale-building side of their industries, and asking: what will poor Santa Claus do next Christmas?

Importers also are besieging the price czar's office, contending that the general ceiling price regulation hamstringing them completely. New business is at a standstill, they say, because foreign prices are beyond control, while what the importer can charge here is under a price freeze.

One thing that worries them, say members of the national council of American importers, is the shortness of the base period--the Dec. 19 to Feb. 25 period which determines price ceilings. Importing business moves on a much greater time lag between orders and sales than do many domestic businesses. The council believes Washington is about to relax the restrictions on them.

But at least one of the new pricing orders seems destined to be well received by many of the nation's merchants. This is the promised relaxation of price ceilings to allow retailers to add their usual mark-ups to goods ordered but not yet on sale.

In the next few weeks this may send the retail price of many goods noticeably higher. The merchant will be freed from the squeeze -- and the housewife will do the best she can with the family budget.

Confederate Veteran Dies in Louisiana

$91,606 Lien Is Filed For Unpaid Income Tax

CINCINNATI, Feb. 21 —(P)—Thomas A. Gallagher, internal revenue collector, today filed a tax lien against Leo G. Robinson of Springfield for $91,606.

The collector charged in the action--brought in U. S. district court--that Robinson owes the government the money as unpaid income tax for the years 1941 through 1948.

its members to enlist in the nation's civil defense program. This was announced at the close of a two-day meeting of the Association's executive board here.

Oil Being Smuggled From Burma to China

RANGOON — (AP) — A rich harvest is being reaped in the illegal overland shipment of oil to China — oil obviously not meant for China's famous lamps.

Reports from the former Burmese capital of Mandalay say that much of it is lubricating oil and gasoline. The contraband, which includes cotton, goes over the Burma Road to Chungking where it is sold at above-ceiling prices, according to the reports.

The oil and cotton are not products of Burma but are imported under government-issued permits. Sales of oil in Rangoon are believed to have increased by 300 percent in recent months. Government sources here say Chinese agents are purchasing the oil wholesale and forwarding it to Red China.

Indian 'Deep Freeze' Is Found in Alberta

STONEY PLAIN, Alta. —(P)— There's some extra food on the shelf at the farm instructor's home in this northern Alberta Indian Reserve, but nobody feels like eating it.

The mixture, now a hardened mass of buffalo meat, fat and Saskatoon berries, is known to the Indians as pemmican. It was unearthed recently near a farmer's home. Historians say the last major Indian encampment here was in 1885, and that the pemmican must be at least 65 years old. Indians claim it may still be edible, but none have volunteered to find out.

City Manager Has Major Problem In Spreading OPS Information

The Washington C. H. city manager has a problem, he believes might better be called a puzzle. It came to him in the form of a telegram—he said he still could not understand why a letter would not have sufficed—from the Cleveland Office of the Price Stabilization.

It requested him to "consider appointing immediately a volunteer emergency stabilization co-operation committee."

That, said City Manager Winston W. Hill, would be a simple enough matter—but that was not all.

It was the purposes that Hill admitted had him stumped.

He said it seemed like a good idea all right, but he added that with the current state of confusion in which price and wage stabilization is engulfed, he did not know just how the objectives of the committee could be accomplished. He said he didn't even know how to chart a course.

The telegram from the OPS explained that the purpose of the committee "would be to provide means of assisting regional and district Offices of Price Stabilization in encouraging general public knowledge and observance of regulations adopted in the interest of a sound national economy."

Freezing and Thawing

Hill said that so far as he is concerned, prices and wages have been frozen and thawed so fast he doubted that anyone could explain them—or that the general public could understand what is going on.

The city manager said he had no disposition to shirk his public responsibilities, but he said, he felt that "at least for the present until some order comes out of the confusion" he felt a committee to "encourage general public knowledge and observance" would be virtually futile.

He said, however, that he had been giving the matter serious consideration, not as to whether to comply with the request but rather how he could comply with it. When he has that part of the puzzle solved, he said he would appoint the committee. He did not say when he expected that time would come.

The telegram explained that the OPS "is convinced that those laws and regulations are most respected which are best understood and easiest to observe."

"It is essential in this national defense mobilization emergency that every citizen be acquainted with all the measures being taken for the common good and be informed of the steps each individual may take to carry out his part."

The telegram, sent in the name of Michael V. DiSalle, the stabilization chief, suggested that the committee membership be drawn from community leaders representing newspapers, civic clubs and labor, educational and veterans organizations, industry, employers and retail businesses.

Bus Hits Parked Truck During Minnesota Fog

Two of the injured were reported in critical condition at St. Olaf Hospital in Austin. The bus carried 31 passengers.

Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy Hearing Is Now Nearing End

Hearings on the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District, in which Fayette Countians already have an $8,000-plus investment in the cost of the preliminary plans, today were nearing the end.

The district's own court has been hearing the arguments for and against the construction of an $11,500,000 dam and reservoir on Mill Creek near Belle Point in Delaware County, north of Columbus, for nearly a week.

Judge Harry M. Rankin, Fayette County's representative on the court, has been unable to take part in the hearings. He has been holding court in Xenia on assignment to the common pleas court of Greene County.

While the Mill Creek dam-reservoir is the question under immediate consideration, Judge Rankin said about a week ago that the fate of the whole district was in the balance.

Support Here Lukewarm

Support of the project in Fayette County has been lukewarm. The contention has been that Fayette County's benefits from the water conservation and flood control measures would be so much less than those to other counties as to be out of proportion.

District officers have proposed the Mill Creek Dam and its 5,120-acre reservoir as a flood control measure to help guard Columbus, Chillicothe, Circleville and other Scioto River cities against another flood like the deluge of 1913.

Many residents of Delaware County are fighting the proposal on the grounds that it will take too many acres—they say 8,500—off the tax lists and that it will dislocate too many residents.

Part of the village of Ostrander will have to be moved and many farms will be swallowed up by the dam's reservoir.

Final witness favoring the project spent yesterday afternoon on the stand and still faced some direct examination today. He was

C. C. Chambers, Columbus, chief engineer for the district.

Step by step, Chambers explained to cut the court the planning and surveys that went into the plan for a dam at Mill Creek.

Chambers said plans for a dam costing about $3,200,000 on Mill Creek about one and one-half miles above its confluence with the Scioto River.

When the river is at normal level, he said, the water back of the dam would cover about 950 acres. But, if the river rose to its 1913 level, the reservoir water would cover 5,120 acres.

Chambers explained that in some cases, buying the part of a farm that would be covered by the flood pool would ruin the remainder of a farm. In these cases, said Chambers, the conservancy district would buy the entire farm outright.

8,500-Acre Project

This would bring the total land purchase to 8,500 acres. The extra land, not needed for the reservoir, would be available for purchase by individuals. Chambers indicated that some of it would find its way back to the tax list.

Chambers explained that the Mill Creek dam would be tied in with local protection measures at Columbus and Chillicothe.

As matters now stand, if Columbus had a flood of 1913 proportions, water 10 to 11 feet deep would stand in the first floor of a proposed municipal coliseum scheduled to be built along the bank of the Scioto in downtown Columbus, said Chambers.

During the 1913 flood, the Columbus engineer testified, the Scioto River above its confluence with the Olentangy River passed 85,000 cubic feet of water per second.

Overflow into the city of Columbus would come at 60,000 cubic feet without either Mill Creek or local protection. If Mill Creek dam was operated, the 1913 flood flow would be cut to 63,000 cubic feet. This still would not keep flood waters from the state capital, Chambers added.

Protection for Columbus

But, with Columbus levee and channel straightening work in Columbus, the river could take safely a flow of 69,000 cubic feet and have three-feet of freeboard.

After the Olentangy joins the Scioto at Columbus, the flow is increased at 1913 flood level to 80,000 cubic feet. Some channel straightening will permit the combined rivers to handle 88,000 cubic feet without overflowing, Chambers said.

The engineer was expected to give figures for Chillicothe today.

The conservancy district is seeking approval of a plan to build a series of reservoirs that would waters of the Scioto and Sandusky rivers, as well as bolster water supplies of communities in the area.

Part of the program is under way now. The Delaware reservoir, which will cost about $15,000,000 is nearly done. The Rocky Fork reservoir south of Columbus has begun.

Other projects include the Bucyrus reservoir, Tiffin reservoir, and those controlling the waters of Big Darby Creek, Deer Creek, and Paint Creek.

The plan also calls for local protection work at Fremont and units no. 1-8 of the Scioto River levee.

Skunk Stops Show

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21 (AP)—A bewildered skunk wandered into the outer lobby of the Palace Theater, one of Cleveland's big movie houses, early today. Four dubious policemen stood by and watched Deputy Adolph Simon of the Animal Protective League chase the skunk. Simon finally bagged him with a blanket.

Scotch Dish Popular With Britishers Now

LONDON (AP)—The meat shortage here has brought the British up against a Scottish delicacy called Haggis. Britons are buying more of it now that the weekly fresh meat ration has been cut to 11.6 cents.

There is some question as to whether Haggis is animal or vegetable. Some Britons call it upholstery stuffing. Actually, it's the insides of a sheep; lungs, heart, intestines, and such, cooked up with a liberal dose of oatmeal to give it authentic Scotch flavor.

Eisenhower Back In Old Offices

Luxurious Villa Offered for Home

By CARTER DAVIDSON
VERSAILLES, France, Feb. 21
—(P)—General Dwight Eisenhower is going to fight for peace in the same rooms he used while fighting a war.

The first home for the general and his wife, Mamie, is a six-room suite on the first floor of the luxurious Trianon Palace Hotel. From that same suite in 1944, General Eisenhower directed the Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force (SHAEP) as is completed liberation of France and sped on toward the heart of Hitler's Germany.

His new job is commander of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE), the international army being organized by the Atlantic pact countries to defend the western world against Communist aggression.

From the windows of his luxury suite, the general can look across the hotel's broad, green garden to the 12-room villa he has been offered for a permanent residence.

This is the Villa Le Noviciat, owned by the fabulously rich commandant Paul-Louis Weiller, an aircraft engine maker and personal friend of "Ike's." The luxuriously appointed villa is adjacent to the Hotel Trianon Palace gardens. Hotel Manager Jacques Ray said he told General Eisenhower last month that if he moved into the villa, the hotel would cut an opening into the towering hedge fence to connect the villa directly to the hotel.

Lived in Villa
Eisenhower lived briefly in the Villa Le Noviciat when he was SHAEP chief. Conspicuous on a front room table is a copy of "Crusade in Europe," a book by Eisenhower.

Beside the book, carefully framed under glass, is a recent letter from General Eisenhower, thanking old friend Weiller for a magnum of cognac sent to the Eisenhowers in New York in late January.

Since security is a priority worry of the officers on Eisenhower's staff, the villa should be welcomed as a residence. It is protected by eight-foot concrete and steel walls. The only entrance, leading down a winding, shaded lane, is about 200 yards from the villa itself. And—there's an air-raid shelter, with signs in German since it was Nazi-built, in the yard.

The villa has three self-contained apartments on the second floor, and five large rooms downstairs. All furniture in the main salon is covered a zebra skin, matching a zebra-skin rug on the winding oak stairs.

In the hotel next door, Manager Jacques Rey, who was born in the Trianon Palace and whose mother still owns it, has turned over one whole floor to Eisenhower and his officers—at something like $15 a day per room.

Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther and his wife will occupy a suite at the other end from the Eisenhower's. Six other officers and their families will be in smaller suites in between.

For his homework, General Eisenhower's suite is equipped with an antique desk made in the reign of French King Louis XV, who completed and occupied the famed Chateau de Versailles, just across the road. The rest of the furnishings in the two bedrooms, two sitting rooms, dining room and office are a mixture of antique and modern.

The suite General Eisenhower will occupy is the same one in which John D. Rockefeller lived when he visited Versailles in 1926.

The six-room suite is a big improvement over the simple four-room apartment Eisenhower occupied when he first saw Paris. That was in 1929, when Major Dwight D. Eisenhower, an attaché of the U. S. Battle Monuments Commission, lived with his wife and infant son, John, in an apartment at 68 Quai d'Auteuil, overlooking the Seine.

Pacific Alliance Being Considered

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—(AP)—The United States is considering a triangular defense alliance with Australia and New Zealand as a move toward a projected Pacific pact similar to the North Atlantic Treaty.

Informal officials reported today that John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State Acheson's Republican foreign policy adviser, is ready to discuss this and other possible defense lineups when he stops off in New Zealand shortly for official talks.

Dulles already has visited Japan and Australia to discuss a Japanese Peace Treaty and to explore ideas for a mutual defense arrangement in the Pacific.

Officials emphasized to a reporter the three-way alliance is one of several alternative arrangements now being considered as a means of knitting democratic nations closer together in the Pacific area.

Letters To Editor

Washington C. H., Ohio
February 20, 1951

Editor,
Record-Herald

Dear Sir:
So Gov. Tom Dewey of New York has come out for General Eisenhower for president. And the Democrats have also launched a boom for Gen. Eisenhower for the same office.

Inasmuch as no one knows the color of Gen. Eisenhower's politics, it might be well for the Republicans to learn just where they are going as they experienced a hyphenated candidate a few years ago in the person of Wendell Wilkie, hand-picked by F.D.R. as his easy-to-beat-one-world candidate.

Gov. Dewey may be titular head of his party but as a statesman he doesn't carry much weight; but as a politician is in the same class with F.D.R. and H.S.T.

Personally, I am for Bob Taft. I have known him for many years and have always found him to be for the best interests of his country, in general. You don't have to guess. You know where he stands.

We have known since 1932 of a movement among Socialists and Communists in government circles to eventually make America socialistic. F.D.R. launched such a program and his stooge now in the White House is following in his footsteps. The next 100 days are going to be very momentous ones.

The gale in Washington about "hold the line" against inflation is of little avail as inflation is already with us. Little is being done to "curb" this monster. In fact, it is being helped along.

Series E bonds expiring at this time if cashed and the money dumped into the channels of trade, only gives another boost to inflation.

High taxes, high wages, high prices, low production, cheap money, only help inflation. Wage and price controls alone cannot solve the problems of our economy. They will not win in this crisis, but unlimited production and purchasing power will.

All such controls and regimentation of our everyday lives, is Socialism being slyly and slowly substituted for our Republican form of government. It is only a step to Communism. Just one short step.

Already you pay a tax on what you earn. Pay a tax on what you buy, and what you have. How true was Harry "the hop" when he said "tax and tax, spend and spend, elect and elect." The personal freedom of every American is under attack.

We work and slave and fight for the things we want for those we love—and freedom heads the list. While conniving, power-drunk, bloated political traitors labor behind closed doors in smoke-filled rooms hatching up ways and means to snatch from a liberty-loving nation the precious things our forefathers fought so gallantly and unselfishly to give us.

How much longer will we go on sacrificing our personal liberties for the so-called but elusive civil liberties?

The greatest power in our lives guarding our liberty and religious freedom are the churches of America. Isn't it about time they should be alive to their freedom? Their liberty is in grave danger. In some sections of America their freedom is being attacked already. Seldom has the church made an effort to meet new needs; it has been slothful in going out beyond the areas already covered by its activities. Too late it may discover that its language is not understood, that its message will not be heeded and its institutions scorned.

"Seek good . . . that ye may live . . . and the God of hosts shall be with you." So says Amos 5:14.

Recall Cancelled By Air Force Here

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—(AP)—An unexpected shift in air force policy has cancelled recalls to duty for 18,000 volunteer reserves and delayed indefinitely the recall of perhaps 60,000 others.

The new plan affects only what are known as volunteer reserves—about 60,000 airmen (non-commissioned) and about 20,000 officers—who were being called up involuntarily. It does not apply to members of air force organized reserve units, or to about 2,000 volunteer reserve specialists in certain fields.

The air force said yesterday the change in plans was made possible by the response of voluntary enlistments and re-enlistments. There were indications, however, that shortage of facilities had much to do with the decision. The big call-up of virtually all reserves was announced Jan. 18.

Ban on Copper Use Eased by Order

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—(AP)—The government has lifted its ban on the use of copper for water systems in homes after March 1.

At the same time it banned or limited the use of copper after April 1 in more than 50 other products—among them coffee makers, home and farm freezers, waffle irons, and refrigeration and air conditioning equipment.

The products in which copper is newly limited or banned are in addition to more than 200 announced previously.

What's its Power? FIREBALL!
(Only Buick can make this statement)

BEND an ear to the deep baritone song of this marvel motor, and you'll know we aren't fooling when we call it Fireball.

Mister, that's Power, with a capital P.

What happens beneath that brawny Buick bonnet happens in no other car in the world.

Years ahead of the rush to high-compression valve-in-head engines, Buick was in there pitching for more power from every drop of fuel.

The result was—and is—a spectacular engineering phenomenon that makes itself felt the instant you touch toe to gas treadle.

You command a rapid-fire sequence of tiny tornados, letting loose their pent-up power every five inches that a Buick travels.

If you could look inside that Fireball engine, you'd see the reason. Instead of the flat-topped pistons used in other cars, Buick uses a turbo-top piston, contoured like this:

So the intruding fuel whirlwinds into a compressed ball that adds a super-urge to the down-stroke of the piston.

And you get the thrill—and thrift—of this Buick "first" in every mile you drive.

More than that, you get an engine tried-and-true—an engine that's been polished and perfected in every detail up through the years.

Again and again, compression ratios have been stepped up to keep pace with advances in fuels. Self-setting valve lifters contribute to silence. Micropoise balance and Hi-Poised engine mountings add two more Buick exclusives.

And the silken might of this Fireball's power has been made more beautifully obedient by still another "first"—Dynaflo Drive.*

So we list as a prime reason why "smart buy's Buick" this Fireball power plant—and a host of happy owners will say "Amen."

Better see your dealer soon, to find out what you've been missing.

milking parlor

SAVES TIME AND EFFORT,
PAYS OFF IN HIGHER MILK CHECKS

The Milking Parlor shown in the illustration is an investment that quickly paid for itself, according to World War II Veteran Richard Tuggle of R. R. 1, Eaton, Ohio. Mr. Tuggle has 11 dairy cows on his 160-acre farm. He built the new concrete block milking parlor, including stanchions, himself, as part of his dairy improvement program to qualify his farm to sell Grade A milk instead of disposing of a lower quality milk to canneries. The difference in milk checks soon paid for the Milking Parlor.

Milking on the Tuggle farm is done electrically. The new Milking Parlor conserves space, saves bending or stooping, makes milking easier, cleaner, quicker. The Tuggle dairy set-up also includes electric milk cooling equipment and an electric water heater to provide plenty of hot water for proper care of utensils and equipment.

For information about electrical dairy equipment, see your county agent, your vocational agriculture teacher and the rural representative of your electric service company.

Lion Cagers Win, 70 to 69, In Overtime at Delaware

It was back to the win column for the Washington C. H. Lion cagers Tuesday evening as they edged out the Delaware 'Cats 70 to 69 at Delaware, in an overtime.

This makes the third game this season that the Lions have gone into overtime. They lost the second overtime game of the season just last Friday to the Greenfield team, 37 to 36, but they won their first one early in the season from the Hillsboro Indians, 65 to 63.

Last night's game was a rough and tumble affair with the officials calling a total of 60 fouls. The Lions connected for 24 of their 36 chances and the hosts hit 17 of their 33 chances.

The Lions trailed all through the game, coming up in the closing minutes to tie the score at 62-62.

In the first frame the Lions were having trouble with Smith, the Delaware forward who was fed the ball for five baskets. That, along with three other buckets and three free tosses, gave the hosts a 19 to 11 first quarter lead. The Lions got their 11 points on three buckets and four out of nine free shots.

SMITH WAS HELD down in the second quarter to one free throw as the Lion defense tightened.

Ivan Blair connected for four buckets during the period and the Lions were able to get to within one point of the Delaware score, 34 to 33, as the halftime buzzer sounded.

Both teams cut loose in the third frame with the Lions getting 15 counters and the 'Cats 16 to lead by a two point, 50 to 48, third quarter score.

Washington C. H. closed the gap in the final two minutes of the fourth quarter at 62 all and Delaware stalled the ball for the last minute to go into the overtime.

Both teams exchanged shot for shot in the extra three minutes, until, with less than two minutes to go, the Lions were given a charity toss that proved the difference in the score. This was the first time the Lions have hit the 70 point marker this season.

EIGHT OF THE NINE players on the Lion squad got at least one point, with five of them getting between 10 and 12 counters. High point honors for the Lions were shared by Bob Alkire and Kenny Robinett with 12 each.

Hot scoring ace of the Delaware squad was Smith with 29 points.

trounced the Delaware Reserves, 45 to 30.

A good WHS defense held the 'Cats to four points in the opening frame as the Lions leaped in to a large 17 to 4 lead at the end of the quarter.

The 'Cats came back in the second stanza to close the gap a little, but the Lions weren't to be pushed and they still had a 27 to 19 halftime score.

Washington C. H.'s Reserves didn't let up in the third frame. They collected 14 more points while the 'Cats were held to eight.

Both teams tired in the closing quarter when the Lions collected four points and the hosts got three.

Jack Rettig of the Lion squad and Harter of the Delaware team tied for high point honors with nine each.

Both squads wind up the regular season at home next Friday evening when they will play host to Springfield's team.

College Basketball

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—A New York sports editor provided the tip that helped the district attorney break the latest basketball scandal.

Frank S. Hogan, the district attorney, said the information came from Max Kase, sports editor of the New York Journal-American.

"I have now permission to reveal that on Jan. 10, 1950, the Journal-American and its sporting editor, Max Kase, warned this office to keep a close watch on a certain player on the Long Island team," Hogan said.

"Kase told us that this player would bear watching. As a result of this tip, the investigation of the district attorney, which was getting nowhere, received a directional steer which was most productive."

Basketball Is Abolished by LIU As Fix Involving Players Bared; Ex-convict Briber Held in Jail

By EUGENE LEVIN
NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—Long Island University, a casualty of basketball's biggest gambling scandal, has quit all intercollegiate sports.

The Brooklyn school, which for many years had one of the nation's leading basketball teams, said last night its action also includes the cancellation of this season's four remaining games, including two scheduled for Madison Square Garden.

LIU President T. W. Metcalfe acted a few hours after three LIU star players and a former team captain were charged with taking $18,500 to fix seven big games, including a National Invitation Tournament contest last year.

These four, plus three top performers of the national champion CCNY team and a player from New York University, admitted obtaining a total of $25,000 in bribes, authorities said.

The arrested athletes are: Sherman White, 6-foot 7-inch LIU forward who was leading the country in scoring and rated by many the best collegiate player today.

Leroy Smith, LIU playmaker and set shot artist.

Adolph Bigos, LIU's ace rebounder.

Ed Warner, star of CCNY's national champions.

Ed Roman, leading CCNY point scorer.

Al Roth, CCNY playmaker.

Harvey (Connie) Shaff, a leading New York University scorer.

Ed Gard, LIU team captain last season.

The district attorney's office said all eight received their bribes from Salvatore T. Sollazzo, a Manhattan jewelry manufacturer and ex-convict.

Sollazzo remained in jail today after State Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hofstadter refused yesterday his latest plea for freedom on a habeas corpus writ. He has been refused bail.

During the hearing, Sollazzo's pretty wife, Jeanne, pulled a mink coat around her shoulders and wept as the justice told her husband:

"I can hardly see a more despicable crime—the corruption of youth at the very fountainhead."

Rumors still persisted that District Attorney Frank S. Hogan isn't finished with the sensational college basketball expose that has kept the sports world tense since he first started questioning players last Saturday night.

Asked if he has two more players in custody, Hogan said:

"There is no basis for that rumor at this time."

Another development yesterday was Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's demand that the maximum prison sentence in New York State for any one bribing or trying to bribe an athlete be increased from five to 10 years.

A bill to this effect was introduced immediately in the Republican-controlled legislature at Albany, and Democrats pledged their support.

The mushrooming scandal continued to bring statements from some major schools that they will not play further games in Madison Square Garden. The latest was from Denver University, which lost an allegedly "fixed" game to LIU two months ago.

Other school said they will continue to play in the Garden.

Gard was the eighth and latest to be brought into the current scandal as a player. He previously was charged as the contact between the CCNY players and Sollazzo.

But late yesterday the district attorney's office said Gard also admitted accepting bribes to "fix" three games in which he played last season. One was LIU's 80-52 Invitational Tournament upset loss to Syracuse.

Gard's athletic eligibility ran out on him this season, although he was still enrolled at LIU.

New Coach at OSU Facing Busy Week

4 Considered By Miami for Grid Coach

OXFORD, Feb. 21 (AP)—Miami University officials today outlined the procedure they'll follow in selecting a football coach to replace Woody Hayes who resigned to take the grid job at Ohio State.

And they indicated they expected to have the job done within a couple of weeks.

The university's athletic advisory council, made up of faculty members and officials of the athletic department, will meet this week to go over all of the information available on applicants for the job and on others who might be considered.

If the members desire, they then may interview any of the candidates.

University officials made it plain the athletic advisory council should not be considered a "screening" committee such as was set up at Ohio State. Its work is the normal procedure at Miami.

There has been no official word as to who will be considered by the committee but it seemed a cinch that four would be Ara Parseghian, now backfield coach at Miami; Glenn (Tiger) Mather, coach at Massillon High School, and Paul Dietzel, former Miami star who recently shifted from Cincinnati to Kentucky as an assistant coach.

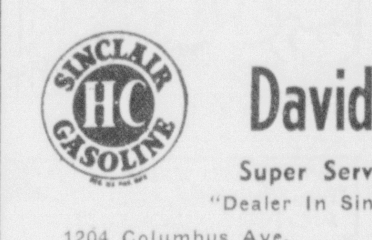

Mather said today, however, he is not interested in the job.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

A SHORT way along the road from where Quint had left her, Jennet suddenly pulled her horse to a halt. It was far too nice a day, she decided, to spend indoors sewing, answering Rhoda's questions about the fashions and fashionable ways of the city.

Aladdin gave a restive toss of his head and she patted his neck. "I know! You want a good run--you haven't had one for days!"

Not far beyond Mistress Sabrina's cabin she came to a wider road, turned into it, touched Aladdin to a gallop. "Go!" she cried softly.

The wind whipped her ears, her cheeks, blew her hair into a wild tangle, sent her cape billowing about her. Every pulse in her sang. When they came to a little brook and Aladdin lifted her high over the logs laid across it, it was as if he were carrying her on wings.

In Greenlands, after weeks of confinement in school, she had saddled Aladdin and gone off on wild gallops such as this. Anywhere, any road--all roads led back to the big white house on the hill.

"My horse needed it, Uncle Quint," she said now. "He gets very nervous if he doesn't have a hard run every now and then. I do, too."

Quint's face remained deeply troubled. "That's all right at Greenlands, but here--something might have happened about."

"Not when I'm on Aladdin! He knows when there is a snake or wild beast anywhere about."

But something had happened. Their run over, Aladdin had slowed down his pace and she had relaxed in the saddle. Ahead, on the road had appeared a tall youth with a blanket of bright colors over his shoulders. The Mohawk, Peter Brant. Her heart had beat with a dizzying lightness.

She was suddenly conscious of the loneliness of her surroundings, deep woods on either side of her, not a house in sight.

The boy gave no sign of seeing her until she was almost abreast of him, when he stepped off the road without a glance at her.

She had in mind a dignified greeting such as was fitting from a young lady of high position to a chief-to-be. But all she could manage to say was, "Hello," and that in a very small voice.

Peter merely inclined his dark head and walked on.

Jennet had been amused, before, when he refused to speak to her. Now she was outraged.

Then she remembered that Peter had looked at her, when they met in the taproom, remembered the way the look had gone down, down into her...

She wanted him to look at her again in that way. She would force him to look at her. With a quick glance over her shoulder to be certain he was walking on, she slipped from the saddle, as she did so giving Aladdin a sharp dip with her boot that sent him galloping on along the road. She knew he would come back; it was a game they played sometimes. Then she dropped down to the road in a little heap of cape and skirts, calling shrilly, "Help! Oh, help!"

From under not quite closed lids she saw Peter, the pad-pad of a run. She heard the pad-pad of his feet, nearer and then nearer, and then his hard breathing. She felt his hands under her shoulders, lifting her. Then she opened her eyes and met his, close to her own and burning dark.

"Are you hurt? Can you speak?"

She was startled to hear the English words from his lips, the English voice, then instantly remembered that he had gone to schools in England, had doubtless moved in fashionable circles of young people there. She was suddenly ashamed of this act she was playing, but go on with it she must--he must not suspect she had not really been thrown from her horse.

She let her head droop a little. "I don't know. If--you will give me your hand, please, I'll try."

She let her voice trail off weakly. Peter gave her a brown, lean hand and she took it and got slowly to her feet. "I seem to be--unhurt. A little shaken, that's all. If--my horse will come back..."

Now it was she who would not look at Peter. She smoothed down her skirt, straightened her cape, put her hands to her roughened hair without looking at him but all the time feeling his eyes on her. He'll come, I'm sure. He never really runs away."

"He's coming now," said Peter

Brant, with an amused mockery in his voice.

She lifted her head, met his eyes and saw laughter in them. The color swept up to her hair. She stammered. "You--you know I was--pretending?"

"Not just at first, but soon after. I've done it myself. Fallen from my horse and lain as though dead. I can do it better than you. But we practice it to use in times of warfare, not..."

Jennet interrupted him with a little stamp of her foot. "You needn't appear so superior. You made me do it--you wouldn't speak, that other time or today..."

"She stopped, narrowing her childish outburst and silenced, too, by the sudden gravity that came to Peter's face."

He made a slight bow, spoke gravely. "If I have seemed discourteous, Miss Darby, I ask your pardon. My silence is because there is nothing to say between us. I am not of your people. Here is your horse..."

Aladdin had cantered up, was nuzzling Jennet's shoulder. "This road leads to the Indian village, near by. I suggest you go the other way. May I help you to mount?"

Something deeper in Jennet than vanity or pride was hurt by the finality of this dismissal. "Thank you, I can mount without your help. You've just said..."

She tried to speak as aloofly as Peter had spoken, but her voice trembled in spite of her. She averted her face, put one foot in a stirrup. But before she could spring up into the saddle Peter's hands were on her, lifting her forcibly into it.

"Oh!" said Jennet on a sharp drawn breath. She should say something cutting in rebuke to such boldness but her heartbeat smothered her voice.

"You made me do it!" said Peter, his eyes laughing at her. Then he gave Aladdin a rap on his rump that sent him off on a gallop.

Ride toward the sun--but the sun was everywhere, in sky and trees and open fields. She let Aladdin follow his instinct. She was angry, furiously angry, she told herself, and knew it wasn't anger, this breathlessness, this wild sinking in her. Hadn't he--hadn't he held her close--unnecessarily close, for just an instant, as he lifted her to the saddle?

Col. Zimmerman Tells Lions of Bataan March

Army Chaplain Addresses Jeff Group on Tuesday

Colonel Leslie F. Zimmerman, a U. S. Air Force chaplain, told members of the Jeffersonville Lions club and their women guests Tuesday night that married men who made the infamous death march of Bataan fared better than the single men.

Col. Zimmerman said he prayed for the funerals of between 400 to 700 men who made the march in the Philippines under the prod of Japanese bayonets during World War II.

Of the 33 chaplains who started out on the march only 17 came back, and Col. Zimmerman said there are only two of the 17 who are still able to work. Many have since lost their minds or are suffering from tuberculosis or some other disease.

Col. Zimmerman said he was a prisoner for four and a half years in a Japanese prison camp. He related how he was treated during this time, and remarked that the orientals can devise the many ways of torturing their prisoners. The speaker said he felt that the married men somehow were better able to endure the torture since they held out a hope of someday seeing their wives and children again, and this hope kept driving them to stay alive.

Col. Zimmerman, who is now stationed at Wright - Patterson Field in Dayton, said the people in the Far East can't understand our generosity. They never stop to help a fellow Asiatic in distress. He said the American people were among the most generous in the world, and he expressed the feeling that this nation would never be overrun because of its strength and unity.

His remarks were addressed to some 50 Lion members and guests, who assembled for a special ladies night dinner and meeting at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Jeffersonville Tuesday night. Ladies of the Pythian Sisters served the meat loaf dinner.

Announcement was made that the convention for district 13-C will be held at Jeffersonville. More than 300 Lions members from clubs in eight counties in the area are expected to attend.

There was also a reminder that the Lions minstrel will be held at the Jeffersonville High School gym Feb. 26 and March 1, at 8 P. M. The Jeffersonville Lions recently voted to donate $10 to the heart fund and $15 to the polio fund drive.

Ohio Legislature

He referred to the vote of 68 no and to 53 yes in the Ohio House yesterday on his proposal to ban state employment of wives at the same time their husbands also held state jobs. Sixty-eight yes votes were needed for passage.

It was the eighth time in Dunn's nine terms as a representative that he has sponsored the measure. House members usually passed it on to the Senate, where it died.

This time representatives mixed fun and seriousness in debating the proposal.

Rep. Ray M. White (D-Holmes) offered an amendment to exempt strawberry blondes from the ban in honor of Dunn's sandy hair. Members shouted it down.

Rep. Terry E. Drake (R-Crawford) opposed the bill. He said that as a bachelor he might want to marry a state employee and then she "couldn't support me" under Dunn's proposal.

Rep. William L. Manahan (R-Defiance) said Dunn's bill was well intended but didn't go far enough. He said it should prohibit nepotism, the practice of an office holder putting his relatives on the public payroll.

All five women representatives voted "No". They are Reps. Esther R. Hardy (R-Sandusky), Ruth D. Mayne (R-Montgomery), Opal J. Mundy (R-Lucas), Anna F. O'Neil (D-Summit) and Loretta C. Woods (R-Scioto).
